The American Society of Safety Professionals presents Using Technology to Conduct Remote Inspections

Learn how technology can be used to inspect your worksites without ever leaving the office. Don't let social distancing and travel restrictions prevent you from doing your job. Use technology to your advantage...connect in real-time and let your onsite personnel become your eyes and ears in the field.

Video Calling Services (i.e. Facetime, Skype, Zoom) as well as certain mobile applications can be used to connect to your remote worksites via audio and video. Your "remote" inspector can walk the site as if you were there in person. The technology allows you to collect photos, screen grabs, etc. and incorporate them into your report.

Don't let the pandemic stop you from doing your job. Let's use technology to our advantage and start conducting "remote" inspections today!

Steve Polich, CSP is President and Co-Founder of Safety Reports based in Omaha, NE. He has nearly 30 years' experience in Occupational Safety and Health.

After leaving the insurance industry, Steve founded a tech company that designs and markets mobile safety applications throughout the U.S. In the name of full disclosure, Steve will be demonstrating Virtual Safety Reports (VSR) as a practical demonstration of how this technology will change the way we conduct inspections, Incident Investigations and more in the years to come!

You are encouraged to complete our survey on how the pandemic has impacted your ability to perform inspections. This information will be shared during the presentation. Please click here to Take Survey Your email will NOT be used for marketing purposes!
